Nearly 400 freshmen begin academic program

The idea of vocation and the role of women in our society are two contemporary themes which will dominate Juniata's 98th academic year starting on September 7.

Discussion of these themes will take place both in and out of the classroom by returning upperclassmen and by the 380 members of the freshman class.

The new Juniataians—257 men and 123 women—come from the upper 40 percent of their high school graduating classes. They were introduced to the college academic and extra-curricular programs and policies at orientation workshops held on the campus in late June and early July by members of the faculty and administration.

Provost Wilfred G. Norris '54 explained the themes which will be explored during the year. "Students and faculty will examine, both together and separately, the meaning of the idea of a vocation."

A faculty conference in September will be devoted to "the problem of vocation in teaching." Later in the year the Will Judy Lectureship will be devoted to the philosophical and theological implications of a vocation. Finally, a student conference will be held on the subject

"What in the world is there to do?"

Norris explained the growing concern with the role of women by stating that "although we have recognized the importance of education of women since the founding of the College, we are now working on specific programs which will fulfill current special needs of women."

Intercollegiate athletics for women is growing at Juniata. This year there will be full schedules in both field hockey and basketball with women also eligible for the golf and tennis teams.

The funds given by the National Endowment for the Humanities are reflected in the faculty activity during the past summer.

Mr. Alexander T. McBride, assistant professor of art, spent the summer in Europe touring the major museums and gathering material for Juniata's art program and general education courses.

Dr. Eva R. Hartzler '32, Charles A. Dana Supported Professor of Chemistry, spent the summer also touring Europe as part of a University of Illinois seminar on the evolution of chemistry and the history of science.

Dr. Klaus Kipphan, associate professor of history, while on sabbatical leave in Germany, received funds to help him

Richard E. Kimmey, Director of Admissions, welcomes freshman Deborah M. Garner to the Juniata campus for the beginning of the College's 98th academic year. prepare material for one of the Human Existence-Historical courses.

Other faculty members spent the summer re-writing courses for Human Existence-Historical and Analytical, and for Modes of Thought and Methods of Inquiry.

Juniata's full-time, on-campus educational program for inmates of the Huntingdon Correctional Institution will continue. It is expected that two or three inmates will attend classes this fall since the results of the experiment were encouraging.

June graduates hear Penn State president

Dr. John W. Oswald, president of The Pennsylvania State University, delivered the commencement address and Dr. John N. Stauffer conferred 87 bachelor of arts and 160 bachelor of science degrees during Juniata's 97th commencement exercises on Sunday, June 3.

The honorary degree of Humane Letters was conferred on Dr. Oswald who, in 1970 became the 13th president of Penn State. In recognizing his national reputation as an educator and a leader, Dr. Stauffer said, "Dr. Oswald is an outstanding educational leader whose good influences reach throughout the land."

In his speech Dr. Oswald cautioned the graduates against confusing loyalty with integrity. He said that how an individual uses his energy is more important than the energy itself.

Dr. Oswald suggested that the graduates select models on which to pattern their lives. "Models conscientiously selected," he said, "can be of tremendous assistance in helping us to mold our lives."

The Reverend Horace S. Sills, vice-president of Lancaster Theological Seminary, was the baccalaureate speaker. Also participating in the services were the Reverend William A. Scott from Bellefonte and the Reverend James G.

Horn, Sr. from Shrewsbury. Rev. Scott's son and Rev. Horn's daughter were members of the 1973 graduating class.

Two graduates received the high academic honor, summa cum laude. They were Richard M. Fornadel from Beaverdale and Mrs. Nancy S. Norton Hartley from Lewistown.

Magna cum laude graduates were David E. Hawbaker from Mercersburg, J. Scott Long from Elizabethtown and Miss Judith A. Grove from Dallastown.

There were seven cum laude graduates: Michael J. Finkle, Huntingdon; Michael R. Kamins, Westfield, N. J.; John J. Bowser, York; Miss Christine L. Chaapel, Cherry Hill, N. J.; Miss Deborah A. Eichelberger, St. Thomas; Miss Vickie Marie Harris, West Caldwell, N. J.; and Mrs. Kelly L. Crain Wike, Tyrone.

Receiving special honors were Mrs. Kelly L. Crain Wike in Mathematics; Michael R. Kamins in English; and K. David Bombaugh, from Framingham, Mass., in Music.

Other highlights of the day included the naming of Dr. Esther M. Doyle, Charles A. Dana Supported Professor of English, and chairman of the English department, as the sixth recipient of the Beachley Distinguished Professor Award, and the promotion of three faculty members, Dr. Robert E. Wagoner to professor of philosophy, Dr. James L. Gooch to associate professor of biology and Ms. Janet L. Lewis to assistant professor of philosophy.

Annual Support Fund tops $130,000 goal

With 46 percent of its total alumni body participating in the college's development programs, the 1972-73 Juniata Annual Support Fund again exceeded its goal. The over-the-top effort marks the fourth time in as many years of the fund that the goal has been surpassed.

The Annual Support Fund reached a total of $133,812 during the past fiscal campaign, surpassing its announced goal of $130,000. The ASF dollar amount, the percentage of contributions and the total number of alumni donors supporting the College are all new highs for Juniata.

Juniata's alumni participation has been steadily increasing over the years. Currently 46 percent participate as annual contributors. Alumni support in 1968-69 was 35 percent; 40 percent in 1969-70; 43 percent in 1970-71; 45 percent in 1971-72, and this year's new achievement. The national average for alumni participation is approximately 19 percent.

As alumni participation has increased, so has the total dollar amount established as the goal of the Annual Support Fund. The fund exceeded goals of $100,000 in 1969-70; $125,000 in 1970-71 and 1971-72; and $130,000 during the past fiscal year.

Dr. John N. Stauffer commended Francis W. Zimmerman '54, District Data Processing Supervisor for the Bell Telephone Company, for his leadership as chairman of the recently completed fund raising campaign. "Fran Zimmerman has contributed enormously during the past year as the leader in the campaign," Dr. Stauffer said. "He not only has contributed in tangible ways, but in those intangibles necessary to guide a successful effort. His skillful and energetic leadership in coordinating the volunteer effort was a major reason for the success of the campaign. Juniata is fortunate to have this type of leadership and willingness to serve among its graduates."

Support for the fund is received from all of Juniata's constituencies including alumni, parents, friends, the Church of the Brethren, corporations, foundations, and local business and industry. The funds are used to support teaching at Juniata and for financial aid for needy and worthy students.

Wagoner, Gooch and Lewis receive faculty promotions

The promotion of three faculty members was announced by President Stauffer during commencement exercises. Dr. Robert E. Wagoner was promoted to the rank of professor of philosophy, Dr. James L. Gooch to associate professor of biology and Ms. Janet R. Lewis to assistant professor of philosophy.

Dr. Wagoner, an assistant academic dean, is a native of Chicago and a graduate of Manchester College (B.S. 1952). He received his Ph.D. in history and philosophy of religion from Harvard University in 1968.

While a student at Bethany Theological Seminary (1952-54), Dr. Wagoner left to travel through Central and South America and took a position as high school principal and teacher for the Brethren Service Commission Castaner, Puerto Rico from 1954 to 1956.

In 1958 he entered the graduate program at Harvard University and was a teaching fellow in general education until 1962. He was a member of the faculty of Bridgewater College from 1962 until he joined the Juniata faculty in 1965.

Dr. Gooch, a native of Parkersburg, W. Va., received his B.S. and M.S. degrees from West Virginia University. He was awarded his doctorate by the University of Delaware in 1968 and joined the Juniata faculty that same year.

He was the recipient of a three-year predoctoral fellowship from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and has written a number of papers on genetics and collaborated in other similar studies.

In 1971, Dr. Gooch went to the Scripps Institute in San Diego to do research on the genetics of deep-sea animals. His study of this subject with Dr. Thomas Schopf of the University of Chicago was a pioneering effort.

Ms. Lewis joined the Juniata faculty as a philosophy instructor in 1970. She earned her B.A. degree from Wilson College in 1964 and her M.A. in philosophy from Bryn Mawr College in 1968. Prior to her appointment to the Juniata faculty, she was an instructor in philosophy at Villanova University.

$60,000 through deferred gifts will replace Miss McCarthy's present scholarship grants.

An unrestricted grant of $5,000 has been received from the Stackpole-Hall Foundation of St. Marys. The grant has been applied to the 1972-73 Annual Support Fund.

The Ford Motor Company Fund recently gave Juniata College $5,000 to be used for the advancement of the humanities program at the college.

Football Squad Faces Tough 10-Game Card

Depth Could Be Key To Season

Depth will be the major difference between the 1973 Juniata College football team and those elevens of recent years.

For the first time in a number of seasons, Coach Walt Nadzak will have a lot of talented football players vying for those 22 starting slots. "We are pleased about the prospects for the upcoming season," said Nadzak, who is looking forward to his fifth season at the helm. "The team is very young, but has depth. If we can instill the importance of discipline and carry over last year's dedication, we could have a pretty successful year."

With the largest freshman contingent in history of the school and perhaps also the most talented group of football players, Nadzak figures to have a lot of competition for the starting berths. "We feel we turned the corner last year in our program with a 6-3 record," he said. "We've got a winning attitude and should be an improved team."

Juniata must get leading efforts from its three tri-captains, Mike McNeal, Lou Eckerl and Larry Johnston. McNeal at slotback and Eckerl at fullback give the Navy Blue and Gold an inside-outside running attack, and both are adept receivers, and can place pressure on the defensive cornerbacks. Johnston, a mainstay in the defensive line at tackle for the past three seasons, must shake off a knee injury from 1972 and return to form to keep the defense sound.

Quarterbacking should be in good hands with Gary Shope, who according to Nadzak, has "all the tools to be as good as anybody in the Middle Atlantic Conference." Shope operates behind a maturing offensive line with RT Steve Oak and RG Sean Ryan and LG Al Zubritzky the leaders. The wide receiver spot is up in the air with the graduation of 1972 leading pass catcher Karl Bergstresser, the only man Juniata loses off the starting offensive squad.

"We have experienced men returning at linebacker in Barry Hartley and Steve Lehman," Nadzak said. "They are both quick, have a good defensive understanding of the game and are probably the keys to our whole defensive scheme."

Although Joe Coradetti, who nailed down a single season interception record

Teamwork is the key to a sound defensive football team. Count the Juniata jerseys (seven of them) getting a piece of the action in last year's homecoming game against Westminster. Replacing the graduated stars of the 1972 defense is one of the major rebuilding problems facing head coach Walt Nadzak and his staff. The offense is sound and if the defense can be shored up, Juniata will win a lot of football games.

for Juniata last year with nine thefts, is graduated from his secondary spot, starters Keith Colonna and Jim Messner return as does a first stringer of two years ago, Brian Hoover, who sat out last year with a broken leg.

The Juniata schedule is an upgraded one with the addition of Gettysburg and Ithaca Colleges. Gettysburg is the season lid-lifter, with such perennial rivals as Albright, Wilkes and Westminster also waiting to cause trouble. It will be the first time in Juniata history that there are 10 games on the slate.
